SGA President Banuelos Takes the Lead

The Student Government Association held their annual assembly on Thursday morning with SGA President, Refugio Banuelos taking the lead.

Armed with a 4.0 GPA and previous campus leadership experience, Banuelos spoke on "Leading by example" and pledged to do so. He explained that being a leader is very different from participating in leadership activities.

Banuelos elaborated that leadership emerges in the presence of high standards. For the college student, this means exhibiting high academic standards while executing responsibility, accountability, and respectability.

He strongly emphasized that when an individual has high standards, they will not only treat others with dignity and respect but they will value and care for the environment that surrounds them.

Banuelos challenged seniors to be role models for the students who come behind them. He also challenged all students to live up to the expectations and ideals of those who made a college education at Morris College possible for them.

Quoting Nelson Mandela, Banuelos said, "Education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world."

President Luns C. Richardson gave closing remarks at the assembly, stating of Banuelos, "Our illustrious SGA president said it all. It was a very fine address. It will help you chart your course at Morris College." Dr. Richardson recognized MCNAA President, Mrs. Barbara R. Jackson, who attended the program.

SGA President, Refugio Banuelos.
